

You're very special

Documentary Immersive Artwork
u2p050

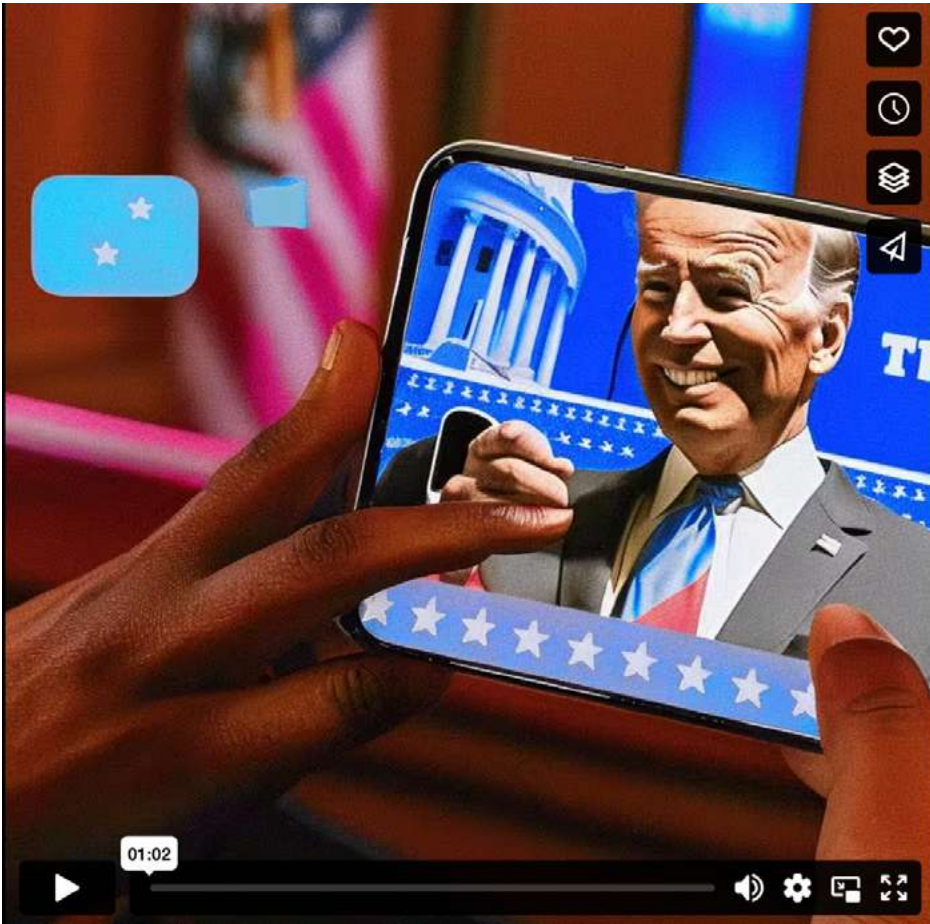

Presentation

You're Very Special is a documentary exhibition made of a collection of synthetic AI archives of January 6 2021.

This exhibition is a reflective journey through a unique set of video archives—a collection of moments from January 6, 2021, as seen through the lens of artificial intelligence.

Unlike traditional archives, these memories have been reconstructed from the digital echoes of that day. Visitors will step into an experience where the boundary between the screen and reality blurs, reflecting how we all experienced the Capitol attack accross the real time world wide web: glued to our phones and computers, witnessing history unfold pixel by pixel, second by second.

Video trailer

A mirror of our times

In today's world, the line between truth and interpretation is increasingly complex. "You're Very Special" doesn't just ask to revisit a day in history; it invites the viewer to reflect on how we experience events in our hyper-connected age. Each of us, through our screens, had a different view, a different feeling, a different interpretation of the same moment. This exhibition mirrors that multiplicity, offering not just a look back but a space to ponder our current moment and how we understand it.

As you engage with these synthetic memories, consider the ways in which technology shapes our understanding of truth and history. What does it mean to remember an event through the filter of algorithms and digital networks? What do the machines remember of that day? What will be the future of archives?

TRUMP 2020

TRUMP 2020

TRUMP 2020

TRUMP 2020

T
T
T

You're very special - u2p050
AI-generated archive with the prompt "If you don't fight like hell, you're not going to have a country anymore."

Exhibition journey

Archive & documentary prompt rooms

As you move through the different rooms of the exhibition, you'll encounter a series of texts, images and sounds that may feel both familiar and strange. These pieces aren't just recreations; they're interpretations, molded by the vast web of data and words we navigated through our screens on January 6 2021, from any part of the world. From tweets to memes, political speeches to personal reflections, each element contributes to a tapestry that represents a multitude of perspectives..

Leaving "You're Very Special," we hope to impulse a sense of the complex tapestry that forms our collective memory in a post-digital world. In an age where every perspective is just a click away, understanding becomes not just about the facts but about navigating the myriad ways those facts are framed and re-framed. This exhibition is an invitation to reflect on your place in this digital mosaic, to question, and perhaps to find new ways to connect with the events that shape our world.

AS AMENDED

RTIFICATING PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

tion had been stolen. And when Donald Tru vote goes to Biden. . . . All you have to do i shall we play a game?

at if we invade it?" on Telegram. As of De it the outset of the French Revolution. I fi

u2p050

u2p050.com

u2p050@u2p050.com

+33 6 31 44 17 76